

SALESMAN ATTACKED
AND ROBBED OF $3.00Glenn Graham Assaulted In Alley Near Athens Hotel
Last Night.

ALLISON IS HELD

Two Men Had a Friendly
Talk After Traveler Refused to Gamble.

Glenn Graham, a traveling salesman stopping at the Athens Hotel, was hit in the face and robbed of his pocketbook and three one-dollar bills about 10 o'clock last night. The robbery took place in the alley back of the Athens Hotel. George Allison is in jail awaiting trial on a charge of assault and robbery.

According to John L. Whitesides, chief of police, Graham said that he met Allison earlier in the evening and was invited by Allison to shoot some craps.

Graham refused, saying that he never shot craps. The two men talked in friendly fashion for quite awhile. Finally they walked north on Ninth street until they came to the alley behind the hotel. At Allison's invitation they sat on a rock in the alley and talked. It was here that Graham was struck and robbed, according to the story told to Chief Whitesides.

Fred Caley, who runs a garage on Ninth street, and Murry Sapp, a taxi-cab driver, said that they heard a call for help and running to the alley they discovered Graham.

"He was spinning around," said Caley.

Graham told Sapp and Caley that when he first saw them he thought they were some more of the gang. Sapp said that Graham was able to walk to the hotel without assistance. The police were then notified and arrested Allison.

A negro boy found a pocketbook that he said he saw Allison throw away. The boy later identified Allison, according to the police.

This morning Allison waived a preliminary hearing and was held to the October term of the Circuit Court. His bond was fixed at $2,000. He was unable to furnish it and is held in jail.

Allison, who is a Columbia man, was injured in France during the war. Caley said that Allison was in his outfit and that he is receiving compensation from the government as a result of a wound.

According to the police, Allison has been arrested several times.

Chief Whitesides said that Allison's mother lived on North Ninth street but was unable to tell where Allison lived. A bottle half filled with "jake" was found in the alley this morning by Chief Whitesides. It is thought that Graham was hit with this bottle.

Dr. J. E. Thornton, who attended Graham, said that he was not seriously injured.

THE WEATHER—Fair.

For Columbia and vicinity: Fair and somewhat cooler tonight. Saturday fair with moderate temperature.

For Missouri: Fair tonight and Saturday; somewhat cooler tonight; warmer Saturday afternoon in the northwest portion.

Weather Conditions.

A high pressure wave, unusually well formed for the summer season, covers most of the upper central valleys and plains states. From the side of personal comfort it is giving ideal weather.

There has been no rain of consequence west of the Mississippi River but light to moderate showers occurred, and the weather continues unsettled, over much of the eastern half of the country.

The Missouri roads are in good condition, save a few rough spots. Going east on the Old Trails some difficulty may be encountered at Cedar Creek because of constructive work. Many prefer to detour by way of Stephens.

Fine weather will likely prevail over Saturday.

CLUB WORKERS TO STATE FAIR

15 Boys' and Girls' Clubs Represented at Sedalia.

A staff of boys' and girls' club workers left yesterday for Sedalia where they will take charge of the boys' and girls' exhibits, contests and demonstrations at the state fair. According to R. H. Emberson this year's exhibits promise to show a marked advance over those of past years.

Stock and poultry judging will be held Monday and dairy judging Tuesday. Demonstrations which begin Tuesday will probably last until Friday. Winners of the demonstration contests will represent Missouri at the inter-state fair to be held at Sioux City, Ia., September 19 to 25. Mr. Emberson predicts a close contest because of the lively interest the participants are taking in the work.

At present fifteen clubs have been reported at the fair and more will probably arrive later. This is the largest number ever entered in contests of Missouri. Expenses of the trip are paid by club fees.

Besides the programs of contests and demonstrations the club members will be admitted to all lectures of the State Fair School for boys which is under the direction of S. A. Baker, superintendent of schools. No clubs will go to the fair from Boone County but several individual members will probably attend.

There are at present 439 boys' and girls' clubs in Missouri with a total membership of 7,060. The work was begun in 1914 under the direction of R. H. Emberson who has had charge of it since that time.

Governors Instructed to Contract for Site—Will Build at Once.

At a meeting last night of the Columbia Country Club members in the Commercial Club rooms, the Board of Governors was instructed to enter into a contract with Dr. A. W. McAlister for the purchase of the proposed site for the clubhouse and grounds of the club.

The number of acres to be purchased will be largely decided upon the recommendation of J. M. Watson of Kansas City. He is an experienced professional in laying out country club grounds. He will arrive Monday to look the site over and have it surveyed.

The members also instructed the Board of Governors to procure plans for the clubhouse. It is the intention of the members to proceed at once with the building of the clubhouse and it is hoped to have it ready for a formal opening about the first of the year.

A meeting of the board was called this morning by the president of the club to select a grounds committee and also a building committee. These committees will work in conjunction with the officers of the club and the Board of Governors.

Over eighty men have already signed the membership contract and the indications are there will be one hundred signed memberships by tomorrow night. This far exceeds the expectations of the club members as very few clubs have over 50 per cent of their complete membership at the time of their organization. The membership will be limited to 150 men.

At present the club will make no effort to increase its membership as a number of prospective members are out of town on business or on vacation.

Above All, He Is Still Her Brother.

He was just a "fall-bird." That is what her friends called him. But he was her brother also.

She had washed dishes all week and had guarded her earnings carefully. The few dollars would be needed to buy her warm clothing for winter.

Then the message came. She forgot the warm winter clothing and the cold weather which will be here soon. She remembered that he was her only brother. The curt note from the prison warden had said he was dying. The earnings were exchanged for a ticket to the Iowa state penitentiary.

Soon she will be back again in Columbia washing dishes and saving money for her winter clothing.

NEW PLANE FLIES IN COLUMBIA

J. V. Hyde Steps on Way to Sedalia—
Will Return Later.

"I just stopped home for dinner on my way from Kansas City to Sedalia," said J. V. Hyde of Columbia, pilot of the Curtiss plane, Adgie Boy, that circled Columbia about noon today.

Mr. Hyde was accompanied by M. F. Kimer, vice-president of the Pioneer Aerial Transit Company of Kansas City. They left for Sedalia this afternoon where they will do passenger and stunt flying during the fair. Mr. Hyde's home is 13 South Fifth street.

The two fliers left Kansas City yesterday afternoon. They stopped at Marshall, Mo., last night and from there came to Columbia. The entire trip was made in an hour and forty-five minutes.

The Adgie Boy is one of the four Curtiss planes owned and operated by the Pioneer Aerial Transit Company. The company was organized in May 1920. Since that time the planes have been kept busy with stunt flying, passenger carrying or in doing advertising work, according to Mr. Hyde.

The Adgie Boy has the record of being the first plane ever used in a political campaign. Judge C. J. Henry, defeated a candidate for congressman from the sixth district, made the campaign. He started two days before election and during that time made stump speeches in twelve different towns. The entire time spent in the air during the campaign was six hours.

Ten-year-old Frances Feaster accompanied Hyde up in a flight which started this afternoon from the golf links. It was her first bow to the airplane world. She clasped her hands and laughed as she was being strapped in. Hyde expects to carry passengers while here in Columbia.

CARRIERS WILL STAY
OUTSIDE A. F. OF L.Convention Rejects Proposed Application by Unanimous Vote.

ASKS SALARY RAISE

State President B. A. Dump
Says Men Need $1,800
For Year's Work.

The annual convention of the Missouri State Association of Rural Letter Carriers rejected the proposal to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor by a unanimous vote at four o'clock this afternoon. The afternoon session opened with the annual report of State President B. A. Dump in which he reviewed the work of the state association for the year. He recommended an annual salary for rural mail carriers of $1800 a year with a monthly allowance of $50 for maintenance of equipment. He based his recommendations on the average of a large number of answers to questionnaires and rural carriers' expense accounts. He also recommended that the proposition of affiliating with the American Federation of Labor be unanimously rejected.

George Kelley of St. Louis followed President Dump's report with a speech in favor of affiliation with organized labor. His principal argument was that this was a natural development and that two minds working together can exert a force of 11 pounds while three minds working together can exert a force of 64 pounds. He argued from this that the force which could be exerted by several million minds working together in the American Federation of Labor would be beyond any other known force and that the rural carriers will receive little or no benefits from this great force unless they are a part of the organization.

W. H. Martin of Warrensburg, who was scheduled to speak against affiliation, was not present, but several speakers made short speeches of opposition. One of the speakers spoke of the action of the National Convention of Letter Carriers in Dayton, Ohio, and roused Mr. Kelley to assert that a steam roller was used in that convention. National President Claud Smith rose on the point of personal privilege and explained that both sides had received all the time they desired in the National Convention for the discussion of affiliation with the American Federation of Labor and that those in favor of affiliation had finally moved the question. He denied that any steam roller had been used. When the matter was put to a vote, all voted against affiliation except one or two not voting and the chairman declared the vote to be unanimously against it.

The Rural Mail Carriers' Association of Missouri opened its eighteenth annual meeting this morning at 10 o'clock at the Daniel Boone Tavern. The address of welcome to Columbia was made by Mayor James Gordon, and was followed by the response by Boyd A. Dump, president of the association.

The initial address of the morning was made by Postmaster L. J. Hall, who stressed the essential requirement for a good rural mail carrier. "There are three things which must always be borne in mind," said Mr. Hall, "and these are regularity, promptness, and accuracy. A carrier must always be on the job, and this is not always the easiest thing when the roads are in bad condition. Regular and prompt delivery cannot be expected when it is impossible for the carrier to travel, and I think the time will soon come when this difficulty will be overcome."

Mr. Hall also stated that it will not be long until rural delivery will be made by cars instead of using horses. This, he said, would not only insure promptness, but would be more economical. He also spoke of the salaries of the carriers, saying that they are inadequate and that they must be raised in order to meet present living conditions.

Frank B. Rollins, president of the Commercial Club, spoke about Columbia and the University, and stressed the fact that the University makes the city belong to the whole state. His address was responded to by T. W. Snodgrass, secretary of the association. After appointing several committees and attending to a few business matters, Mr. Dump read a letter from Champ Clark expressing regret at not being able to be present.
